"The totention is to introduce the coffee dam, and the country there is first extracted with dredging tracebiers, to the (supposed) bard pan or rach bottom. The coffee-dam are then such to the depth of the excut stime, easily rendered impervious to water, and the water jumped out, and the some or working part of the dam kept free, by the one of strain. The excutation is excupleted, and the sides and arch of the tunned constructed with case and without interruptions. The coffee-dam is removed to the text, as each section of completed. And thus the work is produced forward with the calcrity and economy, not for the time being, under the bed of the river, or rather, as at London, for under the water, excluded from light and are, but in the open air, and with all the facilities of ordinary excutation and
